KCL-NUS MSc (CONSTRUCTION LAW & ARBITRATION) PROGRAMME

“A Progress Payment Claim is a single dispute capable of resolution by adjudication in 14 days — myth or reality? A UK perspective”

Date & Time: Saturday, 8 January 2005, 6–9pm
Venue: SDE3, 4th Floor, Lecture Room SDE3-423
School of Design and Environment
National University of Singapore
4 Architecture Drive, Singapore 117566

About the Seminar

The evening begins with a preview of the Joint KCL-NUS MSc in construction law and arbitration given by its programme director. This is followed by a simple ceremony of introducing the NUS's adjunct teaching staff of very experienced construction lawyers and arbitrators.

A buffet dinner follows this ceremony and offers an opportunity for all present to mingle with students and staff members of both KCL and NUS. This may be extremely useful to those who are considering applying for a place on this programme to learn first hand from the students what the programme has to offer.

After dinner Professor Phillip Capper, Nash Professor of Engineering Law at King's College London, will deliver a Keynote Paper on a very current topic [see title above]. It is planned but to be confirmed that he will be joined by the newly-appointed NUS team of adjunct professors to engage all present in the topic — in particular, its relevance to Singapore.

Agenda
